Preaching was held at the house of the former as early as 1803, and in the old stone mill at Huntingdon Furnace at a later date; but about 1830 a meeting-house - a frame plastered on the outside - was built on the old road above Franklinville, which was the place of worship a number of years. After the turnpike was built the building was taken down and removed to Franklinville, where, in a remodeled condition, it now is. The trustees in 1881 were D. R. Miller, D. B. Parks, Joshua Cornelius, Nicholas Parks, and Henry Omo. The congregation forms a part of Warrior's Mark Circuit, and has had its ministerial supply from that source. The first Sunday-school in this part of the valley was opened in the old stone mill at Huntingdon Furnace about 1821 by Samuel Mattern, Samuel Conrad, Ephraim Galbraith, and Jeremiah Cunningham. It was maintained regardless of a church connection, and having a large attendance from that part of the township exerted a great moral influence upon the young people. The Franklinville Sunday-school had an attendance of fifty-four scholars in 1881, and was superintended by D.R.Miller.

Notes for Samuel J. MARKS:

Obit Unidentified Newsclipping - 1895

Samuel J. MARKS was born at Huntingdon Furnace, Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania, October 10, 1821, and died in Tyrone, Blair County, Pennsylvania, May 3, 1895. His youth was spent in Center and Huntingdon Counties, Pennsylvania.

February 24, 1846, he was united in marriage to Miss Susanna MATTERN. To them were born six children, five of whom survive. Soon after his marriage he removed to Tyrone, where he afterward resided, and where his wife died October 17, 1879.

February 9, 1882, he was married to Mrs. Delilah MYTON, who survives him. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1842, under the pastorate of the Rev. James STEVENS. His consistent life and sterling character won for him speedy recognition in both church and town. He filled with signal ability the position of class leader, steward, and trustee. In the Town Council he was faithful to the trust reposed in him. On one of his class books is the name of John H. VINCENT, now Bishop. He was never absent from his place in church when able to be present. He was at both preaching services on the Sunday preceding his death.

The disease that shortened his life was double pneumonia, the result of an attack of la grippe. He was a good man, and will be sorely missed in the church where for upward of thirty years he has been a veritable pillar.
